

The Reef and Rainforest Research Centre (RRRC) is a not-for-profit member based organisation dedicated to build the scientific knowledge base to underpin the conservation and sustainable development agenda in Tropical Queensland. The RRRC works at the intersection of conservation, Government policy development and community economic development in the tropics, providing services and promoting innovative solutions and community well-being.

The RRRC aims to translate science-based ecological knowledge into improved environmental outcomes, increased local and regional wealth and to create regional jobs.

The results of the RRRC are already being used by more than 38 organisations including the Australian and Queensland Governments, regional natural resource management groups, local governments, tourism industry, agricultural groups, fishing industry, conservation organisations and indigenous bodies.

Our Track Record

RRRC Ltd has successfully managed logistically complex programs and projects valued collectively at more than $170 million since 2006. These programs and projects have helped deliver the tools for sustainable use and management of natural resources across a range of key areas, including:

- Coastal community sustainability and stability
- Food security
- Marine resource management in complex tenure and cultural environments
- Climate change vulnerability and adaptation
- Disaster management
- Ranger training
- Building capacity in civil society, small business and commerce

RRRC Ltd specializes in working closely and collaboratively at the grass roots level with communities to achieve aspirations for community well being and prosperity. We have a proud record of association and confidence with Australian Indigenous communities across northern Australia; with island communities in the Torres Strait; and coastal communities in Papua New Guinea.

RRRC Ltd partnerships include the national governments of Australia and Papua New Guinea, Australia's world class research institutions, regional natural resource management bodies, economic development agencies and industry bodies and businesses and a highly specialized training and operational support team.

Get in touch today to learn how our network can assist you.

CONTACT US

T: +61 (0)7 4050 7400 E: enquiries@rrrc.org.au